Guardian Digital Awarded Network Computing's Editor's Choice for EnGarde Secure Linux

EnGarde Easily Beats Hewlett-Packard, Others, to Walk Away with Coveted Secure Linux Award

Saddle River, New Jersey - June 10, 2002 - Guardian Digital, Inc., the open source security company, has today received the highest rating and was awarded "Editor's Choice" in a comprehensive, industry-wide Secure Linux evaluation conducted by Network Computing. The results were published in an article entitled "Hardened Linux Puts Hackers EnGarde" in the June 10, 2002 issue.

Guardian Digital EnGarde Secure Linux Professional Release v1.1 software won Editor's Choice based on security responsiveness, installation, ease of management, documentation, and price. EnGarde received the highest grade among all products evaluated.

"EnGarde walked away with our Editor's Choice award thanks to the depth of its security strategy, which covers nearly all the bases. Everything from the low-level mechanisms (binary integrity checking and stack protection) to high-level usability issues (including an excellent patching interface) demonstrate the serious effort the Guardian Digital crew has invested in EnGarde," Network Computing said. "[The] Guardian Digital Secure Network provides a textbook example of an ideal patching interface -- automatic notification, simplified downloading and straightforward descriptions are all included. We were up to current patch levels in a matter of minutes."
